The 8-Week Advanced Plan

An 8-week advanced strength program built for experienced lifters ready to unlock new levels of strength, size, and power. Structured to push your limits while keeping progression clean and intentional.

8	5–6	60	Peak Performance
WEEK PROGRAM	WORKOUTS/WEEK	MIN PER SESSION	GOAL

WHO THIS IS FOR

This is the advanced program. It earns that name.

This plan is for experienced lifters who train consistently, understand progressive overload, and are ready to push into new territory. Six days per week. Heavy compound movements. Conditioning finishers. Two peak weeks.

You will be tested. The program is designed to find your edge — then push past it.

— Experience required

You must be comfortable with barbell deadlifts, squats, bench press, and rows before starting.

— Time commitment

5–6 days per week, ~60 minutes each. Rest and active recovery days are programmed in.

— Equipment

Full commercial gym required — barbell, dumbbells, cables, machines, bench.

— Progression

Load increases weekly. Strategic peak weeks and resets built into the structure.

THE STRUCTURE

How the program is built.

WEEKS 1-2

Foundation & Strength Building

Reinforce key movement patterns. Establish consistency and workload baseline.

WEEKS 3-4

Power & Peak Week 1

Increase load with lower reps. Sharpen focus with peak intensity week.

WEEKS 5-6

Reset & Reinforce

Deload to recover. Reinforce strength with high volume.

WEEKS 7-8

Break Through & Peak Week 2

Push to max effort. Finish the program stronger, more powerful, and well-conditioned.

A NOTE FROM COACH TYLER

Eight weeks in. You're not the same person who started.

This program was built to find your ceiling — and then remove it. If you showed up for all 8 weeks with the right intention, you're stronger, more powerful, and more conditioned than when you started.

Most people quit before week 6. The fact that you're here means something. Keep going.

If you want to combine this with running, build a hybrid program, or take your training to the next level with 1-on-1 coaching — that's exactly what Always Reddy Athletics is built for.
